

The Toll Roads are excited to announce the return of the

FOSSILS IN YOUR BACKYARD

Educational Program

Fossils in Your Backyard is an interactive educational program designed for students in grades 2 through 7. The Toll Roads, in conjunction with LSA Associates, offer a free paleontological and archaeological program for schools and local non-profit youth organizations. The program gives children a hands-on lesson about paleontology and archaeology with a professional scientist. Fossils in Your Backyard allows students to touch and interact with fossils and replicas and learn what Orange County was like millions of years ago.

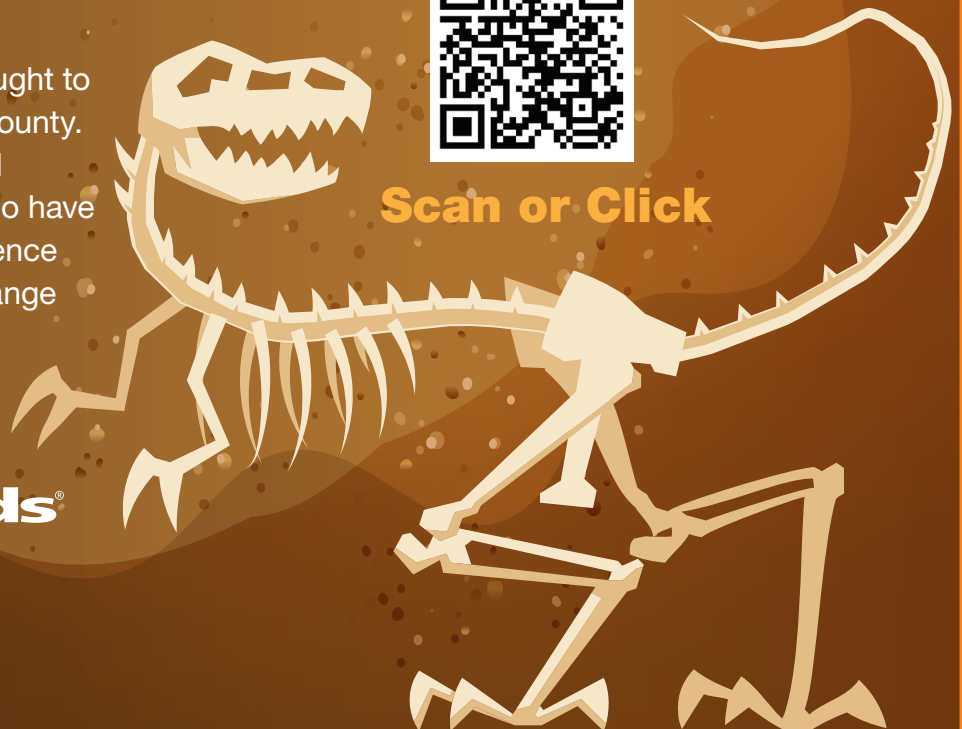

To date, the program has been taught to over 50,000 students in Orange County. The visiting scientists are qualified paleontologists/archaeologists who have more than 10,000 hours of experience working with school groups in Orange and Los Angeles Counties.

The program is offered to schools and local non-profit organizations completely FREE. If you're interested in bringing Fossils in Your Backyard to your classroom or organization or would like more information, please scan or click on the QR Code below.

- Ideal for classroom-style environments.
- Tailored to the science curriculum in your classroom.
- Open to non-profit youth programs.

Scan or Click

The Toll Roads®
LSA