As a result, please read this Privacy Policy with care.

Rights of EU Data Subjects

The European Union (EU) data protection law known as the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) give individuals in the EU more control over their Personal Information and regulate businesses that store Personal Information.

If the processing of your Personal Information is subject to the GDPR, whenever we use or share your Personal Information, we ensure that we have identified a legal basis under which such processing may occur. As described in more detail in the How We Use the Information We Collect section above, when we use your Personal Information in connection with a request, order, transaction, or to provide you with services that you requested (such as the use of the Website or App or to register for events), we do this because it is necessary for the performance of an agreement with you.

Furthermore, to the extent the GDPR is implicated, where we use your Personal Information in relation to improvement, development, or marketing of our products or services, for reasons of safety and security, or to satisfy regulatory requirements, other than in connection with our agreement or request, we do this on the basis of our (or a third party's) legitimate interests or with your consent, as required.

If you are an EU data subject and if your use of our Website or App is governed by the GDPR, subject to the local and legal and regulatory requirements of the United States, you have the right to:

- Request access to your Personal Information (commonly known as a "data subject access request").
- Request correction of the Personal Information that we hold about you (though we may need to verify the accuracy of the new data you provide to us).

- Request erasure of your Personal Information:
 - Where there is no good reason for us continuing to process it or where you have successfully exercised your right to object to processing (see below).
 - Where we may have processed your information unlawfully or where we are required to erase your Personal Information to comply with local law.
 - Note, however, that we may not always be able to comply with your request of erasure for specific legal reasons which you will be notified of, if applicable, at the time of your request.
- Object to processing of your Personal Information where we are relying on a legitimate interest (or those of a third party) and there is something about your particular situation which makes you want to object to processing on this ground as you feel it impacts on your fundamental rights and freedoms. You also have the right to object where we are processing your Personal Information for direct marketing purposes. In some cases, we may demonstrate that we have compelling legitimate grounds to process your information which override your rights and freedoms.
- Request restriction of processing of your Personal Information. This enables you to ask us to suspend the processing of your Personal Information in the following scenarios:
 - (a) if you want us to establish the data's accuracy;
 - (b) where our use of the data is unlawful but you do not want us to erase it;
 - (c) where you need us to hold the data even if we no longer require it as you need it to establish, exercise, or defend legal claims; or
 - (d) you have objected to our use of your data but we need to verify whether we have overriding legitimate grounds to use it.
- Request the transfer of your Personal Information to you or to a third party. We will provide to you, or a third party you have chosen, your Personal Information in a structured, commonly used, machine-readable format. Note that this right only applies to automated information which you initially provided consent for us to use or where we used the information to perform a contract with you.
- Withdraw consent at any time where we are relying on consent to process your Personal Information. However, this will not affect the lawfulness of any processing carried out before you withdraw your consent. If you withdraw your consent, we may not be able to provide certain services to you. We will advise you if this is the case at the time you withdraw your consent. You will not have to pay a fee to access your Personal Information (or to exercise any of the other rights). However, we may charge a reasonable fee if your request is clearly unfounded, repetitive, or excessive. Alternatively, we may refuse to comply with your request in these circumstances.

In order to exercise your rights under the GDPR, please contact us using the information provided in the How to Contact Us section below. Please put the statement "GDPR Privacy Rights" in the subject line of your request and include your name, country or region, and enough information to allow us to respond to your request in the body of your email.

We may need to request specific information from you to help us confirm your identity and ensure your right to access your Personal Information (or to exercise any of your other rights). This is a security measure to ensure that Personal Information is not disclosed to any person who has no right to receive it. We may also contact you to ask for further information in relation to your request to speed up our response.

We try to respond to all legitimate requests within a reasonable time period, generally one month, depending on the complexity of the request.

For our users located in the European Union or the European Economic Area, if you feel that, after reaching out to us with your question or concerns, you have not received a satisfactory response, you have the option to contact your country's Data Protection Authority ("DPA") or similar regulatory body. To find contact information for your country's DPA or similar body, please refer to the list provided on the website of the European Commission.
